

Back in 2003, Air-Britain published Those Fabulous Flying Years by Colin Cruddas and which focussed on the inter-war joy-riding and flying circuses and the pioneering activities of Sir Alan Cobham. The book included details of, in particular, the dates/locations of the various fields used.

Over the years since then, we have gradually expanded our knowledge of the where's and when's of such activities and while the extended basic list was compiled by Malcolm Fillmore, it has been significantly added to by Richard Cawsey from his researches.

Given that so little has hitherto been published elsewhere, this is already a unique database of use not only to aviation researchers but to local historians too.

But much is still to be found – not least because the primary source tends to be local newspapers and archives. So please do add whatever you can to the database which will be periodically updated with new information.
